New Homeowner Wins $10,000

Washington, D.C. – In June, Jimmy Johnson bought his first home. He also bought a few Mega Millions tickets, and one was a winner - a $10,000 winner.

“I’ve been playing Mega Millions in the District since the D.C. Lottery started selling the tickets,” said Johnson who bought his ticket at Facts and Snacks on Bolling Air Force Base in Southeast, Washington, D.C. “Every week, I buy a few Mega Millions and POWERBALL tickets.” Well, Tuesday, June 22, 2010 was his lucky day, as he had the only Mega Millions ticket in the District of Columbia that was worth $10,000.

Johnson plans to use the money to pay off credit card debt that he accumulated as a new homeowner. “I was looking at my credit card bills this morning and I was hating it,” he chuckled.
