D.C. Lottery Player Parlays $20 Prize Into $1,000 Win

Another District Resident Wins Black Ticket 2nd Chance Drawing 1,000 Gift Card

Washington, D.C. – Paul Kesner likes the D.C. Lottery’s newest $20 scratch ticket, District of Columbia Black. He had been interested in playing the game since the ticket first launched, and now he’s even more excited about the game after winning a $1,000 gift card in the District of Columbia Black Second Chance Drawing.

“I had won $20 or $21 bucks with POWERBALL® and Mega Millions®, so I decided to get a Black ticket,” said Kesner. It turned out that he won another $20, so he bought another Black ticket. This time, he didn’t win a cash prize; however, he was interested in the Second Chance Drawing, where he could potentially win a $1,000 gift card, or the grand prize of a trip for two to Las Vegas.

“I liked that I could enter the Second Chance Drawing online,” he said. “It was very easy.”

The day before the July 14th drawing, Kesner received an e-mail reminder to enter the drawing. “I had already registered, but the day of the drawing, I received another e-mail stating that I was the winner. Wow!”

Kesner checked the address to make sure that it wasn’t a company phishing for his personal information. Once it sunk in that he was the July 2010 Black Ticket Second Chance Drawing winner, then he was surprised and happy.

“I’m thinking about buying a new iPhone and saving the rest for presents.”

The D.C. Lottery and Charitable Games Control Board’s Executive Director Buddy Roogow says sales for Black are better than forecasted and players are enjoying the $20 game. “Congratulations to Paul Kesner. He is our second District of Columbia Black Second Chance Drawing Winner. There are nine more drawings for a $1,000 gift card before the grand prize drawing of a trip for two to Las Vegas.”

Kesner entered the Second Chance Drawing online at <http://2ndchancedraw.com/dcblack/> by submitting the required information. The next Second Chance Drawing is scheduled to take place on August 11, 2010.
